

Our Purpose

At Thompson Professional Development, our programs and training serve as a catalyst to unleash your best performance.

Together we will identify your strengths and introduce powerful techniques that can have enormous impact on your business. We will reinforce critical basics and sharpen your professional edge.

When applied to your business, our programs can revolutionize your business relationships, dramatically improve your results, and enhance your professional profile.

We look forward to working with you and your team. Please let us know how we can best serve your needs.

Meet Kristin

With an educational background in psychology and a passion for personal and professional development Kristin is a true product of the product.

She spent nearly a decade in sales for top television and radio stations, winning awards for new business development and online sales, and in one record-breaking quarter increased her new business by 300%.

Several years ago, Kristin felt called to a more fulfilling career. She began speaking to companies across Oregon and Washington receiving rave reviews.

Kristin's passion comes from her desire to serve others. She finds great joy in helping people tap into their true potential. It is with this intention that Kristin launched Thompson Professional Development, specializing in customized training programs for individuals and businesses across the Northwest.
